

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a Christmas bulb structure, which is provided with a pair of conducting wire in the bulb and one filament and two or more fuses connecting with the two conducting wires in parallel. It increases the well rate of the assembled light string and prevents the bulb from broken caused of the filament being burned out. And also it lengthens the used period of the bulb and the light string.